General Funston Believes That Individual Officers of Island
Garrison Will Get Chance

News that the war cloud that has been hanging over the Mexican border for months past was about ready to break, and that the thunder of ordnance and the lightning of rifle fire was the prophecy of the international weather man, has set some 5000 soldiers on Oahu on the extreme edge of expectancy's seat. However, from the turn of the cards, it would appear that only a favored few will have the opportunity of taking part in any possible struggle between the United States and the powers south of the Rio Grande.

The impression prevails in official circles here that Oahu's protectors will be left "sitting on the lid" and that the only troops having a chance to meet the Mexican enemy in case of war are the horse soldiers. A Mexican campaign will be one for cavalry first and foremost and it is doubtful if the 4th Cavalry will be allowed to remain on this small island.

That individuals here will be given their chance is the general opinion. These are officers of the army of Oahu who have been recognized when the crucial test arises.

In this connection Brigadier-General Frederick Funston, commanding the Hawaiian department, said to a Star-Bulletin representative this morning:

"It is highly improbable that the garrison of Oahu, with the possible exception of the 4th Cavalry, will be drawn on in the event of war with Mexico. By that I mean that the organizations now here will probably remain, but there is a good chance of individual officers who have shown special fitness being appointed to higher commands in the volunteers. Oahu has many fine officers who have gone through one or more of the service schools and have acquitted themselves creditably in active service, who are quite capable of holding higher rank with credit to themselves and the nation. In the event of an army of half a million being mobilized on the border, some of these officers would undoubtedly be given their chance. With these exceptions, I believe that the army of Oahu will be forced into the spectators' position for a while, at any rate."

STENOGRAPHER LOST TO GOVERNOR WHEN SWIMMER BECOMES A BENEDICT

Another vacancy in the territorial offices is announced today, meaning another appointment to be made by the new governor. The vacancy is created by the resignation of Miss Margery McGuire, stenographer in the governor's office, who was married to Harold Hueston, one of the Hui Nalu swimmers, at San Francisco last week. A cable conveying this news was received by the young woman's family Saturday, and further confirmation came to George Clarke, the governor's private secretary, in a letter from her this morning.

She announces that the bridegroom, who accompanied the Hui Nalu swimming team to the Portola and participated in the aquatic contests there, has obtained a position with the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Company's San Francisco branch, and that the couple will make their home in the Bay City. They are a present in the vicinity of Sacramento on the honeymoon.

W. T. Rawlins, president of the Hui Nalu Club, served as best man at the wedding, and though the details have not yet been received here, it is thought Duke Kahanamoku and the other members of the team who had not already left on the Honolulu for home were present at the ceremony. It is also possible that Territorial Secretary Mott-Smith, who is on the coast on his vacation, may have been among those present at the festivities. Miss McGuire accompanied the Hawaiian swimmers to San Francisco and the news of the wedding surprised none of the couple's friends here. It was generally understood when they left that the marriage would take place there or immediately on their return.

Mr. and Mrs. Hueston are well known on the islands and have a host of friends here. Both were born and reared in Honolulu and received their education in the local schools.

Mrs. Elizabeth Wood, a wealthy Los Angeles widow, has renounced all church and social affiliations to join the Salvation Army and help fallen women.

O'Shaughnessy, American chargé d'affaires in Mexico City, who will be presented with his passport provided the ultimatum of President Wilson does not meet with the approval of Huerta.

SAY KINNEY IS COMING HERE TO GET TESTIMONY

Returning Honoluluans Hear That San Francisco Attorneys Are Engaged

That Attorney W. A. Kinney is making ready for a bitter legal fight against Alexander & Baldwin on the ground of alleged mismanagement of the McBryde plantation is the news brought to Honolulu by Honoluluans returning from San Francisco within the last few days.

Men who have seen Attorney Kinney recently say that he has engaged several well-known San Francisco lawyers to assist him in his fight and that he himself will come to Honolulu shortly to secure depositions in the case. It is expected that the suit will be filed in San Francisco and there has been a rumor current for some days that the matter has already gone to court, but this is denied locally.

Kinney is said to base his grievance on the passing of the dividend on preferred McBryde stock and to allege waste and mismanagement of the plantation, for which he holds the agents responsible. Men who have seen Kinney recently declare that he is firm in his determination to press the suit with every resource at his command.

BIG DRYDOCK ENGINEER IS IN HONOLULU

W. T. Donnelly Arrives to Care for Construction of New Inter-Island Structure

W. T. Donnelly of New York, one of the foremost drydock designers of the country, on whose plans the Inter-Island Steam Navigation Company's new drydock has been built, arrived in this city by the steamer Honolulu this morning and is now a guest at the Pleasanton Hotel.

He has made the trip to Honolulu to superintend the tests to be made on the Inter-Island company's new drydock, the first of which will be made next week. Mr. Donnelly expects to remain here until the drydock is satisfactorily passed upon.

For years Mr. Donnelly has been known as an eminent naval engineer, but particularly is he known for his work in the building of drydocks. The giant Prince Rupert drydock, of 20,000 tons, was designed by Mr. Donnelly, and it alone stands out as a feat of his kind without a rival. He is also credited with the construction of the 12,000-ton drydock for the Seattle Construction and Drydock Company. He has designed smaller drydocks for such ports as San Pedro, Long Beach and other cities.

The Inter-Island drydock is almost completed. Within a few days now the preliminary tests will be made, and if they are successful tests will be made with a vessel. The drydock is 360 feet long over keel blocks and is 76 feet between the wings. It is large enough to handle a steamer of the size of the Wilhelmina, and was originally planned to have a capacity of 12,000 tons.

The drydock is worked upon pontoons, nine of which are used in all. Steel wings are used. A ship is raised by coming alongside the drydock as it would a regular wharf. When she is made fast the 18 pumps, two of which are to each pontoon, are used and the vessel is quickly raised. The pumps are driven by a 200-horsepower motor.

Several entertainments will be given in honor of Mr. Donnelly during his stay here, one of which, already under way, will be by the Hawaiian Engineering Association. He will be asked to speak on the subject of drydocks.

DELEGATE AND SHINGLE BACK FROM HAWAII

Mixture of Business and Politics
Their Mission—Terrible
Drought Is Broken

Delegate Kuh'o and Robert W. Shingle, president of the Waterhouse Trust Company, returned from Hawaii this morning on the Mauna Kea, after a week on the Big Island. Mr. Shingle went mainly on business with a little hunting and politics thrown in. The delegate, according to the lively suspicion in political circles, went on a good deal of politics with a little business and hunting thrown in.

What the delegate got in the political line is known to none but himself. In the hunting line he bagged enough plover for any Nimrod, getting 130 on one foray and 110 on another. While it could not be learned this morning that the delegate or Mr. Shingle made any political speeches, Kuh'o's ear was attuned to catch the whispering of delegateship currents deep down among the Hawaii electorate. They went around the Big Island, finding the voters on the alert for gossip concerning the next campaign and election.

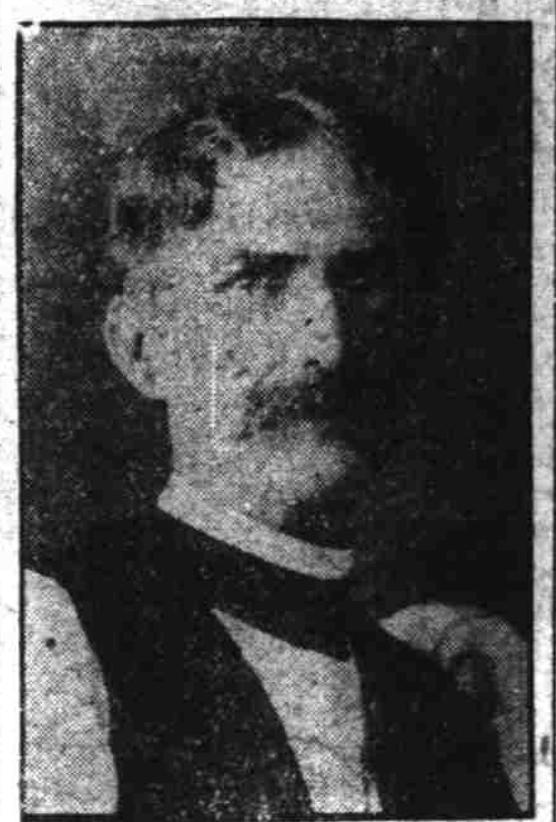

Shingle's business on Hawaii was mainly concerned with the settlement of the Maguire shortage with the board of supervisors. In which he represented the United States Fidelity & Guaranty Company, the Waterhouse Trust Company being the agents for the bonding company here. The bonding company settled its responsibility in full, so far as it was not involved mutually with the First Bank of Hilo. The bank made an offer of $40,000 in settlement for illegal warrants amounting to approximately $56,000, this offer being accepted. The bonding company settled for $287.25 for its responsibility. Mr. Shingle said this morning that the people of Hilo seem well satisfied with the terms of settlement.

"Hawaii, especially the Hamakua district, has had a terrible drought," said Shingle today, "but the rains we got in Honolulu also fell over there and mean thousands of dollars to that section. The upper Hamakua ditch went dry and the drought was so great that the ditch company abrogated its regular rules and allowed the people to go to the ditch and get water. If it hadn't the people would have had to leave that section of the country. I saw Robert Horner there and he told me it was the driest season he had known in 30 years."

Rev. H. B. Restarick Present at
Triennial Convention of the Episcopal Church

Bishop Henry Bond Restarick, accompanied by Mrs. Restarick, and Miss Margaret Restarick, returned to Honolulu on the Korea yesterday after having spent the past five months touring on the Pacific coast and in the east. The bishop went to the mainland for the double purpose of renewing his health and attending the triennial convention of the Episcopal church of the United States which convened in New York in October, and during an interview this morning, said that he had been greatly benefited by his trip and was much improved in health.

The bishop left Honolulu in June and, after spending some time in California and Colorado with friends, went to Plymouth, Mass., where Mrs. Restarick, Miss Margaret Restarick and Arthur Restarick were visiting.

WILSON AND BRYAN ARE SILENT, BUT PREPARATIONS FOR WAR GO STEADILY ON

Secretary of the Navy Announces Second Division of Atlantic Fleet to be Held
Mexican Waters—Denial Made
That Notification to Mexico Was an "Ultimatum"—Huerta Refuses to Indicate His Course

(Associated Press Cable)

MEXICO CITY, Mex., Nov. 4.—The Mexican situation is still at a crisis without an assurance as to whether its outcome will be war or peace.

Though told in plain terms by Uncle Sam that he must step down as dictator of Mexico, General Victoriano Huerta today absolutely refused to yield to the demands of President Wilson for a successor who is one of the "other world."

CLARION

WAR PREPARATIONS GO ON

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 4.—Secretary of State Bryan today denied that the communication sent to General Huerta is an "ultimatum."

At the navy department an announcement from Secretary Josephus Daniels shows that Uncle Sam is getting ready for any contingency.

It is announced that the second division of the Atlantic fleet will remain in the Gulf waters, notwithstanding that the battleships of the third division are due at Tampico, Florida, tomorrow. This is taken to mean that there will be no shifting of strength from Mexican waters until the present crisis is over.

The present stations of the warships now are as follows:
At Vera Cruz—Louisiana, Michigan, Rhode Island, Virginia, New Jersey.
At Tampico—New Hampshire, Nebraska.
At Guaymas—California, Pittsburg.
At Mazatlan—Maryland.

WILSON DECLINES TO DISCUSS IT

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 4.—President Wilson, who is here to cast his vote in the state election, declines to discuss the Mexican situation.

Seven States Are Holding Important Elections Today

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 4.—Seven states are holding elections today. In Massachusetts, New Jersey and Virginia governors will be chosen. In Maryland a senator is to be named and in Pennsylvania two superior judges. In Kentucky two circuit judges and members of the legislature.

In New York there are to be chosen nine supreme court judges, chief judge of the court of appeals and members of the assembly. Many cities are choosing mayors and other city officials, among the most important being New York, Philadelphia and Cincinnati.

The most important state elections are those in New Jersey and Massachusetts. President Wilson is urging the election of Acting Governor James F. Fidler, who was his lieutenant-governor.

Massachusetts has the largest entry list in her history, there being seven candidates, as follows: Charles S. Bird of Walpole, Progressive; Alfred H. Evans of Northampton, Prohibition; Eugene N. Foss of Boston Independent; Augustus P. Gardner of Hamilton, Republican; Arthur E. Reimer of Boston, Socialist-Labor; David I. Walsh of Fitchburg, Democrat; George H. Wrenn of Springfield, Socialist.

The six parties have candidates for all state offices but the Democratic and Republican are the only parties that have candidates in all the senatorial and representative districts. In some of the representative districts the Progressives have endorsed the Democratic candidates.

Boston Paper Claims State for Walsh
BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 4.—As the count progresses in the gubernatorial election in Massachusetts, no candidate has a commanding advantage. Forty districts give Bird, Progressive, 1927 votes; Foss, Independent, 547; Gardner, Republican, 2225; Walsh, Democrat, 1748.

In the same districts the figures for 1912 were: Bird, Progressive, 2048; Foss (Democratic in 1912), 2086; Walker, Republican, 2675.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 4.—The Boston Globe in an election extra claims that David Walsh, Democrat, will carry the state for governor by 30,000 to 40,000.

Mitchell's Election Believed Certain
NEW YORK, N. Y., Nov. 4.—The count in the first five Brooklyn districts give McCall, Tammany, 231; Mitchell, Fusion, 371.

The Brooklyn Eagle claims Mitchell's election. The New York Sun, supporting McCall, concedes that Mitchell is elected.

Strike Grips Indianapolis

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 4.—The city still continues in the grip of the street-car strike, with the strikers victorious in their efforts to block all electric traffic. Not a car is moving. The police are openly in sympathy with the strikers and joined in cheering them today.

Stricken Steamer Safe In Port

ST. JOHNS, N. F., Nov. 4.—The Furness line freighter Manchester Commerce arrived here today in a sinking condition. She collided with an iceberg on Sunday night and crumpled her bows. There has been no loss of life. She sailed for England Friday.
